

CONVERSATION PIECES

C E P A G A L L E R Y

Objects are, for the most part, designed with a specific function in mind. It is often within this designated function that we determine a thing's identity, that we spy upon its basic ontology. Yet so often things "break" (fall apart, peter out, decay, lose steam, or simply change). It is at the breaking point that we cease to take such objects and our relationship to them for granted? We consider this state a critical one: when an ontological shift is possible and necessary. In addition to a physical rupture, there is a different and more robust kind of 'opening'. Our Repair Shop service will take your 'broken' things and 'repair' them on-site and for a small fee. All fees acquired will be added to the Soup Grant pool and distributed at the Closing Events.
